

MEET CTC CONSULTANTS

CTC Consultants is unique because of the knowledge and experience of its founders, Terese Corey Blanck and Judy Anderson. Working together for 20 years in this specialty niche field, they know 18-28 year olds -- how they think, self-motivate and develop.

Terese and Judy are each consultant, expert, trainer, speaker and author, whose training and entire careers have been dedicated to the development of young adults. In 2006, they co-authored The College to Career Road Map companion books for parents and students, and work as a consultant team in entry-level talent management.

Their goal and passion is to close the gap between businesses and entry-level employees based on their in-depth understanding of the Millennial generation, Emerging Adulthood, and leveraging their experience working with young adults. Their application of this knowledge - and their understanding of where the workforce is headed without it - is both cutting edge and critical.

JUDY ANDERSON

has broad experience engaging and developing 18-28 year olds, spanning both universities and businesses.

Judy has taught introductory college leadership courses, trained and led large groups of student leaders to advise transitioning students, and designed and managed the student alumni leader program at the University of Minnesota.

Judy has served as a consultant to higher education and the business worlds, as it relates to young adult development.

Additionally, she has been invited to conduct, along with Terese, numerous trainings for academic and business leaders and HR professionals.

Judy earned her M.A. in Student Development in Higher Education from the University of Iowa. She lives in Minnesota with her husband and three children.

TERESE COREY BLANCK

is a national leading expert in the development of 18-28 year olds and its relation to the changing workforce.

Terese has excited audiences with keynotes notably at Southern Methodist University in Dallas, Northern & Southern California Community College Systems through MonsterTrak, Nichols College in Boston, and the Multi-culture Diversity Fair in Baltimore where she shared a keynote with Stedman Graham.

After 15 years on campuses from Colorado to New York, seeing a bigger need Terese segued to business. For the past decade she applied her expertise at two Twin Cities specialty niche entry-level placement firms.

In 2002, she also launched College To Career, Inc. to coach college students.

Terese earned her M.Ed. in College Student Development from Colorado State University. She lives in Minnesota with her husband and daughter.